

A Parting

Poems

Posted by: sathishverma

Posted on : 2019/4/6 1:38:28

I was once again-
angry with me, for cheating the smile and wading into violence of tears.

It was hard on me.
You will not find any remains of my departure.

Like a cuckoo
breaking its flights in mid air and falling from the sky.

It was not that simple-to embrace the solitude. I was your dream and I was your pain.

A pithy moon-
in all-out night, smothering the wet lips. I want no more affairs.

A ripened age wants only a handshake to finalize an exit.